State Library contributes Yakima Herald to *Chronicling America

Site is home to 2.3 million historic newspaper pages

OLYMPIA...The Yakima Herald is among nine newspapers and more than 50,000 historic newspaper pages recently contributed to Chronicling America, making Washington State's contribution to the program a total of 16 titles and 92,000 pages. Chronicling America is a project of the National Digital Newspaper Program (NDNP), a partnership between the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Library of Congress.

E.M. Reed and James R. Coe founded the Yakima Herald in February 1889. Both men had owned other Yakima newspapers prior to this joint venture and had been attracted to the Yakima area's potential for growth. The paper was founded during Washington's transition from territory to state, and North Yakima sought to be named state capital and the site of the state agricultural college. North Yakima lost both contests, but maintained its population of 5,000 and developed as an important agricultural center. People can read and research issues from this and other newspapers around Washington and U.S. for free at chroniclingamerica.loc.gov.

"These historic newspapers are a rich resource for historians, genealogists and other researchers," said State Librarian Jan Walsh. "They provide names, dates, images and tell the story of a community or region in such a comprehensive way. They bring local history alive."

Chronicling America provides free and open access to more than 2.3 million full-text searchable pages from 295 titles published between 1860 and 1922 in 19 states and the District of Columbia. The Washington State Library's National Digital Newspaper Program \(NDNP\) grant was recently renewed through June of 2012, allowing more pages from other newspapers around Washington State to be uploaded over the next two years.

“It’s exciting to have this collection in Chronicling America,” said Deputy State Librarian Marlys Rudeen. “It will give researchers the ability to search across multiple collections of newspapers from various states at once.”

Part of the mission and purpose of the Washington State Library is to collect, preserve and make accessible to Washingtonians materials on the government, history, culture and natural resources of the state. Read more about the State Library.
